

Peter Berryman

Peter Berryman has been in continuous private practice as a homoeopath since graduating in 1985. Peter has taught homoeopathy and bioscience, along with supervising student homoeopathic clinics, since 1990. Peter has held numerous academic positions, including Senior Lecturer in the Department of Bioscience at the Endeavour College of Natural Health, and as the Academic Manager at the former Bay of Plenty College of Homeopathy, New Zealand. Peter has graduated from five universities and three colleges during his extensive training (MSc, BMedSc, BSc, PGDipHlthSc, ND, AdvDipHom, DipAstPsych, GradCertEd, GAICD).

A lifelong learner, Peter's most recent qualification was a Master of Science in Homeopathy, awarded with merit in 2015, from the University of Central Lancashire in England. Peter has been a director on the board of the Australian Traditional Medicine Society (ATMS) since 2007 and has been president of ATMS since 2017. Even in his holidays, Peter has volunteered to work as a practitioner for the last thirteen seasons at the Woodford Folk Festival, in the free homoeopathic clinic.
