

Divya Bhatt

My homoeopathic journey began in 2002 when I joined the Government Homoeopathic Medical College in Bengaluru, India. Coming from a family dominated by orthodox medical practitioners, practising homoeopathy was a challenge!

After four years and six months of medical education, I was assigned a one-year internship in major Government Hospitals. I worked in the major departments of Medicine, Surgery, Paediatrics, Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Psychiatry and Dermatology where I prescribed homoeopathic medicines to assist people with general health issues. In addition, the 80-bedded ward provided the opportunity to closely monitor chronic cases on homoeopathic medicines. In the minor surgery department, we dressed wound with homoeopathic mother tinctures and ointments.

I started my thesis work on 'Allergic rhinitis' during post graduate studies in 'Organon and Homoeopathic Philosophy' at YMT Homoeopathic Medical College, Navi Mumbai, India, in 2008. On completing my 'Doctor of Medicine' in homoeopathy, I began my private practice under the guidance of my mentor in 2011 in Mumbai, India.

With eight years of clinical experience in India, I came to Canberra, Australia, in November 2015. I registered as homoeopathic practitioner with ARoH and became a professional member of the AHA in 2016. I was on the board of directors of ARoH from 2018 to 2020. The quest to offer classical homoeopathy to everyone started my association with the International Academy of Classical Homeopathy in 2020.

My journey so far has been truly fulfilling and rewarding. Every case, even today, has never stopped to amaze me, 'What wonders homoeopathy can do!'

