

Nyema Hermiston RN ND Adv Dip Hom BSc Hons

Nyema's background as a Registered Nurse and naturopath has served to complement her homoeopathic practice. She has been in practice in Sydney and the Southern Highlands of NSW since 1988. She was President of the Australian Homoeopathic Association NSW branch 1999-2002 and is currently President of The Aurum Project, Australia's only registered homoeopathic charity. Her special interests are acute primary care and child health.

She has authored three self-help books for patients; Treat Your Child Yourself, A Parents' Guide to Drug Free Solutions for Common Complaints (2007) co-authored with Jon Gamble; Good News for People with Bad News (2013), 41 interview transcripts of people from 6 countries who have overcome serious and life-threatening illnesses using complementary therapies; and the booklet Treat Your Child's Ear Infections Yourself (2021).

She attained a BSc Hons (Hom) from Middlesex University UK in 2021. The research Nyema undertook during this study, uncovered and fuelled her interest in current research on the causes of childhood autistic spectrum disorders.
